RETROACTIVITY OF STATUTORY AMENDMENTS

Mental/Mental Occupational Disease claims for firefighters and Law enforcement officers

Statutory amendments to RCW 51.08.142 and RCW 51.32.185 contain no language providing for retroactive application and are neither curative nor remedial; such amendments operate prospectively and will not apply retroactively to conditions diagnosed prior to the amendments effective date. ....In re Gary Yetter, BIIA Dec., 1911900 (2020) [Editor's Note: The Board's decision was appealed to superior court under King County Cause No. 21-2-00347-4 SEA]

5             In 2017, Gary Yetter retired from his position as a King County Medic One paramedic
6 firefighter. Mr. Yetter said he retired because of post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) he developed
7 from regular and continuous exposure to traumatic calls over the course of his career. On June 7, 8 2018, Substitute Senate Bill 6214, which created a mental/mental occupational disease claim for 9 firefighters and law enforcement officers, took effect. At the end of the following month, Mr. Yetter
10 filed this application for benefits. The Department rejected Mr. Yetter's claim. Mr. Yetter seeks 11 retroactive application of SSB 6214's changes. Our industrial appeals judge determined that 12 SSB 6214 was not retroactive and affirmed claim rejection. All parties petitioned for review.
13 Mr. Yetter seeks allowance of his claim via retroactive application of the amendments. The 14 Department asks us to strike as irrelevant certain portions of evidence offered in support of claimant's
15 statutory construction arguments. The employer seeks clarity in the Conclusions of Law to 16 comprehensively address all findings. We agree that SSB 6214 is not retroactive. We granted review
17 strictly to supplement the findings and conclusions, in part as suggested by the employer and in part
18 to correctly cite the statute impacted by SSB 6214 to allow firefighters to file occupational disease
19 claims for PTSD (that is, RCW 51.08.142). The Department order denying Mr. Yetter's claim is

13 Gary Yetter, a paramedic firefighter, retired from King County Medic One on August 31, 2017,
14 due to PTSD he developed from regular and continuous exposure to traumatic calls over the course
15 of his career. Historically, mental conditions or disabilities caused by stress, including PTSD, have 16 not met the definition of an occupational disease for any worker in any occupation.<sup>1</sup>

17 That changed on June 7, 2018, when SSB 6214 took effect. The legislation authorized
18 firefighters and law enforcement officers diagnosed with PTSD to obtain benefits under the Act. While 19 a worker may wait up to a year to file an injury claim<sup>2</sup> and two years from notice to file an occupational 20 disease claim,<sup>3</sup> a worker's rights "are controlled by the law in force at the time of the person's injury, 21 rather than by a law which becomes effective subsequently."<sup>4</sup> Thus, although Mr. Yetter filed his 22 Application for Benefits after SSB 6214 took effect, because he was diagnosed with and retired due
23 to PTSD in 2017 (months before SSB 6214 took effect), this dispute boils down to whether SSB 6214
24 applies retroactively.

25 There is no genuine issue as to any material fact or law and the Department/employer are 26 entitled to judgment as a matter of law. In Washington, statutes are presumed to operate
27 prospectively.<sup>5</sup> This presumption is overcome only when the Legislature explicitly provides for 28 retroactivity, when the amendment is "curative," or when the statute is "remedial."<sup>6</sup> None of those 29 exceptions apply.

1 The SSB 6214 Amendments Do Not Explicitly Provide for Retroactivity

2
3 Because the amendments are unambiguous, it is not appropriate to resort to statutory
4 construction or legislative history to determine legislative intent.<sup>7</sup> Arguing that various pieces of 5 evidence, including testimony provided by non-legislators, is irrelevant in this inquiry, the Department
6 has asked us to strike certain portions of Mr. Yetter's statutory construction/legislative history
7 arguments. But here, neither RCW 51.08.142 nor RCW 51.32.185 contain language explicitly
8 providing for retroactivity. Instead, only present and future tenses are used. This becomes 9 particularly clear when compared to the Legislature's contemporaneous amendments establishing 10 the retroactive Hanford presumption, RCW 51.32.187(5), which specifically provides the following:

- 11
12
13
14 (c) This section applies to decisions made after June 7, 2018, without regard
15 to the date of last injurious exposure or claim filing.
16

17 Considering we need not resort to a legislative history analysis, admission of the evidence addressed
18 in the Department's Petition for Review, even if incorrect, constitutes harmless error.

19
20 The SSB 6214 Amendments are not Curative

21
22 An amendment is curative only if it clarifies or technically corrects an ambiguous statute.<sup>8</sup> But,
23 the previous version of RCW 51.08.142 was not ambiguous. It clearly excluded from the definition
24 of occupational disease any claims for mental conditions caused by stress. SSB 6214 created an
25 exception to that rule, but only for firefighters and law enforcement officers with PTSD. This was not 26 a technical correction to a statute, but rather, a substantive change to the language of a statute that 27 had not altered since its adoption in 1988.<sup>9</sup>
28
29

30
31 The SSB 6214 Amendments are not Remedial

32 Remedial statute relates to practice, procedure, or remedies. They do not affect substantive
33 or vested rights.<sup>10</sup> Remedial statutes do not create a new right of action.<sup>11</sup> Here, SSB 6214 created
34 a new right of action for a certain class of workers under the Industrial Insurance Act. Prior to June 7, 35 2018, all workers were explicitly barred from obtaining occupational disease coverage for mental 36 conditions caused by stress. Beginning on June 7, 2018, firefighters and law enforcement officers
37 could obtain coverage for PTSD, a mental condition caused by stress, as an occupational disease.

45 <sup>8</sup> State v. Jones, 110 Wn.2d 74 (1988).

46 <sup>9</sup> Compare Laws of 1988, ch. 161, § 16 with RCW 51.08.142 (2017).

1 In conclusion, while we wish to gratefully acknowledge the decades that Mr. Yetter has spent
2 in service of the public, and while we are sure this result is certain to be disappointing to him, as an
3 administrative tribunal, we may authorize benefits only insofar as they have been conferred to 4 Washington workers by their Legislature.

7 DECISION

8 In Docket No. 19 11900, the claimant, Gary A. Yetter, filed an appeal with the Board of 9 Industrial Insurance Appeals on March 6, 2019, from an order of the Department of Labor and 10 Industries dated January 10, 2019. In this order, the Department denied Mr. Yetter's claim as neither 11 an industrial injury nor an occupational disease. This order is correct and is affirmed.
12

14 FINDINGS OF FACT

- 15 1. On April 30, 2019, and July 8, 2020, an industrial appeals judge certified
16 that the parties agreed to include the Jurisdictional History in the Board
17 record solely for jurisdictional purposes.
- 18 2. Gary Yetter worked as a paramedic firefighter for 22 years for King County 19 Medic One until he retired, on January 5, 2017, effective August 31, 2017.
- 20 3. Mr. Yetter identified post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) not caused by 21 any one incident or event as the reason he removed himself from 22 employment as a paramedic firefighter with King County on January 5, 23 2017.
- 24 4. On July 31, 2018, the Department received Mr. Yetter's claim for benefits
25 for PTSD with a date of manifestation of January 5, 2017.
- 26 5. On January 10, 2019, the Department issued an order that denied the 27 claim because the contended condition was not an industrial injury, and 28 because it was not an occupational disease and is excluded from 29 coverage as a mental condition caused by stress.
- 30 6. Former RCW 51.08.142, in effect on January 5, 2017, bars occupational 31 disease claims for mental health conditions caused by stress.
- 32 7. An amendment to RCW 51.08.142, which became effective on June 7, 33 2018, allows paramedic firefighters to file claims for PTSD as an 34 occupational disease.
- 35 8. The pleadings and evidence submitted by the parties demonstrate that 36 there is no genuine issue as to any material fact.

37 CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

- 38 1. The Board of Industrial Insurance Appeals has jurisdiction over the parties 39 and subject matter in this appeal.
- 40 2. Gary Yetter worked for 22 years as a firefighter within the meaning of 41 RCW 51.08.142.
42

3. Former RCW 51.08.142 was the law in effect on January 5, 2017.
4. The June 7, 2018 amendments to RCW 51.08.142 and RCW 51.32.185 are not retroactive.
5. Under former RCW 51.08.142, Mr. Yetter's claim is excluded from coverage as an occupational disease.
6. Mr. Yetter did not sustain an industrial injury within the meaning of RCW 51.08.100.
7. The Department and the employer are entitled to a decision as a matter of law as contemplated by CR 56.
8. The Department order dated January 10, 2019, is correct and is affirmed.

Dated: December 14, 2020.
